

Ministry camp encourages youth to make a difference

Marshall, MN - Last summer four students, Sara Olsem, Kayla Wischer, Janna Dorman, and Karl Roesler, from Holy Redeemer Church in Marshall attended Youth and Theology Ministry Camp (YTM)

at St. John's University. YTM is a two week long camp where high school youth receive training to better understand their faith and learn to become Disciples of Christ. This is achieved by theology classes, service projects, and prayer. "The Youth and Theology Ministry Camp was such an amazing place that helped a much needed growth in my faith by incorporating prayer and friendship into daily routine," stated participant Janna Dorman. Program participants were sent back to their parishes to undertake a service project. These four youth put on a hunger banquet to show the injustice of food distribution in our world and nation. After the banquet, they collected food items for the local food shelf at every Mass for the month of November. The youth raised $1,877 in cash donations and 1,338 pounds of food.
