

Young men from diocese tour college seminary

On Sunday, February 4, 2007, the young men of the Junior Class of St. Mary's Sleepy Eye, as well as one from New Ulm, two from St. Peter, and one from Redwood Falls, participated in the first Open House specifically for the Diocese of New Ulm at Saint John's Vianney College Seminary located on the campus of the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul. Fr. William Baer, rector of the seminary, greeted the visitors and shared about the formation as Christian men that the seminarians receive and the seminary system in general. The seminarians of the Diocese of New Ulm led tours of the seminary building and answered questions. Bishop John C. Nienstedt was present to celebrate Mass for all in attendance followed by supper.
